Affordable Rental Housing for the Young – International Tenant's Day / UN World Habitat Day

3 October 2011 —Brussels, Committee of the Regions

Affordable Rental Housing for the Young – International Tenants' day/UN World Habitat Day

The event will focus on the access of the young population in the housing market since one of the biggest problem in EU today. Young people are increasingly squeezed out of the housing market; affordable housing in both the private and social rented sector is in short supply and buying a home is out of reach of many. Because of this reason nearly 50 % of the young people (18–34 years old) in EU today, still live with one of their parents.

Delayed adulthood as a social phenomenon produced by housing conditions is a problem that employment and social policies should take seriously, in terms of the potential negative effects it can have on family life, labour market mobility and employment rates. On the occasion of UN World Habitat Day/International Tenants' Day, IUT will debate about solutions to the housing shortage for young adults.

Date: October 3rd, 2011 , Time: 9.30 am – 17.00 pm
